Poetry.

Two Pictures.

An old farm-house with meadows wide,

And sweet with daisies on each side;

A bright-eyed boy who looks from out

The door with woodbine wreathed about,

And wishes, his eye thought all day:

"Oh! if I could but fly away

From this dull spot the world to see,

How happy, happy, happy,

How happy I should be!"

Amid the city's constant din,

A man who round the world has been,

Who, 'mid the tumult and the throng,

Is thinking, thinking all day long:

"Oh! I could I only tread once more

The field-path to the farm-house door,

The old, green meadow could I see,

How happy, happy, happy,

How happy I should be."

Some Interesting Things About Counterfeit Money.

"Gath," the Chicago Tribune's versatile correspondent, has been amusing himself lately by interviewing an engraver on the subject of counterfeit money. Said this gentleman, "I am one of the oldest engravers in the country. There is an investigation to be made into the currency of the country, which will startle you and your newspapers and all their readers. There is a ten dollar bill. Take it—look at it. Do you see anything notable about it?"

I looked the bill all over, and then the man all over, and saw nothing to excite a remark in either—"

There is nothing particular about that bill," he said, "except that it is counterfeit. There are eighteen distinct counterfeiters on the ten dollar bill, and as an engraver I know that they represent eighteen different counterfeiting gangs. People generally know nothing whatever about the duplication of United States bonds, and about the quantity of counterfeit scrip afloat. If you, as a newspaper man, were to go to General Spinner, and to the heads of the Treasury, and ask how much counterfeit currency was in circulation, they would probably tell you ten per cent.; but I tell you, as an engraver, that they have admitted to me that there is twenty-five per cent., or one-quarter of the whole amount of the stamps current in this country, which are fraudulent. Do you know, sir, that the postal currency is renewed six times every year? That is the case, and see the possibilities for its increased duplication and counterfeiting. We could better afford to pay fifty per cent.

premium, and use gold, than to have to deal as we do with a lot of paper

Poking Fun at a Railroad.

From the Richmond Guide.

Mr. D— writes as follows about the railroad between Richmond and

Petersburg:

But about this railroad. Of course

I want it abolished—every one does.

The reckless velocity with which the trains run between here and Petersburg is absolutely frightful. I was delighted years ago when this road was built, because I thought we had got rid of the old rickety and dangerously fast stage coaches, but the speed they are beginning to run the trains on this road is worse yet. Now every one knows that Petersburg is twenty-two miles from Richmond, if it is an inch, and a day and a half is plenty quick enough for the trip, but the managers have already reduced the schedule to one day, and with making the engine fires too hot, and racing with cows along the road, and with all that, the conductors are cutting the time down.

Why, it was only the other day, on the home trip, we happened to spy old Jim's mule about two miles from Manchester. What should the wretch of an engineer do but to clap on full steam and race every foot of the way into town. We didn't exactly pass the mule, but we caught up with him twice, and came to Manchester crossing neck and neck; and which was puffing most, the mule or the engine, you couldn't have told to save your life.

Now it was exciting, and all that I know, but I hadn't purchased an accident ticket, and I don't believe the other four passengers had either.

This is all wrong, Mr. Editor, all wrong.

And then, on another occasion, I remember, we came within a hair's breadth of having a severe accident.
